Dear Anna Marie:

I just thought I'd drop you a little note to let you know what I'm up to. I've recently married and am pursuing a prestigious career.

Lately I've been thinking back and remembering when we were seniors and the girls' golf team won the first State championship for Cascade High School. What an exciting moment. Remember all of our good times together? Love ya,

Keep In Touch.
AMERICAN BALD EAGLE

Adopted as our National emblem in 1782, the Bald Eagle is a bird of majestic beauty sometimes reaching a wingspan of 7 feet. It lives on fish, small mammals, and waterfowl.

Keep In Touch with a year full of memories, good and bad. Keeping in touch is the theme we have chosen for the 1988-89 yearbook.

Every year the graduates look back and say "Enjoy high school, it's the best time of your life." And every year the freshmen say "Three more years..."

The years of high school go by fast, and before anyone realizes the fun of co-curricular activities, talking to friends in the halls, and learning something new daily, the year is over.

To seniors, may we remember the special memories and cherish them. To freshmen, make memories that will last a lifetime. And to everyone, remember to KEEP IN TOUCH.

1. "Oh Bill, please tell me the name and number of your manicurist. Your nails are so beautiful!" says Brandi. 2. Kodiak volleyball played several tough games. Here Jon tells Leigh and Rob what a great dig his sister Jori made. 3. Look out GTE, Jason is on the line again! Who could he be talking to?

Rip Van Picket begins his 4th year of slumber. The big question:
1. "Scotty, I can't believe it. Even lunch time is getting dull," says Exene. 2. And here is Jennifer, being weird again. Most people sleep through class, but Jennifer is much too studious. She sleeps during lunch! 3. Don't worry John, nobody is going to try and steal your lunch.

Will he wake up in time for graduation?
1. Parlez-vous français? Jennifer McDevitt says "oui, oui!" on her French test. 2. On her way to the darkroom, Meredith Presler breaks for a photo session. 3. Curt Ranta needs shorter legs or a taller chair. 4. Inseparable as usual, Natalie Barnes and Karen Wagoner relax between classes. 5. Jennifer Jacobs wonders what her neighbor is gossiping about. 6. Winning the grand prize for lunch, a grand tour of the kitchen, Kelsey Whitehead is beside herself with joy.
Hiki and Wendy or is it Wendy and Hiki.

Yes, Staci is it on the tip of your tongue? Why don't you ask Kelsey, look like she knows?

Some people, like Kim, have lots of hair—then there's Erika.

Wait! There's something crunchy in my food too!

It's a bird, it's a plane, no wait it's a computer disc.

Autumn Leaf Festival was a hit for the Kodiaks!

In a field show competition at W.S.U., the band brought home two first place trophies!

Marching down the streets of Pullman was no big deal for the band. They won first for the small parade.

This year was a bit different for the band. To try new things and to boldly go where no "A" school band has gone before was Mrs. Drayer's concept. She lead the band to three parades and two field show competitions where the band won first's and second's.
DELIVERING A SINGING TELEGRAM

The 1988-89 school year for the choir classes was fantastic. The choir program is divided into two sections. In Swing Choir members must try-out for a position. Regular Concert Choir consists of individuals who like very much to sing. Both choirs are directed by Mr. Dirkse. This year the choirs put on three major concerts in the commons area filling all seats to standing room only at all three performances!

The guys' section of swing choir really improved this year. In this group you will find: Mike Kelly, Chris Conklin, Tim Butcher, Dennis Allen, Rob Lee, and Jason Moore.

The girls' section contained: Bettina Saunders, Laura Willsay, Kelsey Whitehead, Jill Thrasher, Carrie Lane, Danielle Schafer, Kristi Knoll, and Paula Wildhaber.

The high school choir had more members than ever. Directed by Jerry Dirkse
This year's Junior Miss was a great success. All of the girls who participated showed enthusiasm and talent. Kim Langston, who our 1989-90 Junior Miss, very well.

Other awards present were first runner-up, J Thrasher; second runner-up, Jennifer McDevitt; Spirit Junior Miss and Talent Award, Staci Houston; and Po and Appearance Award, Dale Moody.

Homecoming

Oct. 8, 1988
The seniors did a great job putting on Homecoming 1988. The theme was "Hands to Heaven" and the colors were pink and silver. A great D.J. came from Seattle and rocked us through the night. The dance ended a great homecoming week.

2. Jill can't even get inside the building before she's talking away to anyone.

Waiting For A Star To Fall

The 1989 Prom was a great success. Ninety-two couples arrived at the beautifully decorated commons. This year's colors were metallic green and cerise pink. Sound Express provided the music and showed videos of us and music videos throughout the evening.

In 10 years
I see myself ...

Jackie Houston

... married yet a very independent woman. I won’t have any kids yet because I won’t be ready. I will have a successful business going and my income will be at least $80,000 a year. My husband of course will be a doctor and a gorgeous one at that. We will have a huge house by the ocean and a farm on the countryside.

Michael Pickel

... healthy, wealthy, and wise. Money will be pouring into my hands. I’ll be a successful businessman with four kids and a beautiful wife. I’ll be living on the coast of California, looking over the sea. My house is two stories with a built-in pool to boot.

Kelsey Whitehead

... having already traveled the world with my wealthy husband. We’ll settle down at one of our countryside manors and live happily ever after with our two children and family dog.
Top: A wedding at Cascade? You bet! This year Mrs. Fode’s marriage and family class staged a wedding with all the trimmings and trappings. The bride Karen Wagoner models her dress shortly before the ceremony which was attended by many of the students and staff. A reception followed in the class room. Report has it they honeymooned in Dryden.

Bottom: “There has to be a synonym for ibidem. I can’t keep using it over and over”. Bettina Saunders checks out the thesaurus in the library. Those last minute reports are always difficult.

Your alarm didn't go off, it took five minutes to start the car, and you got stuck at every construction site on the road. The day couldn't get any worse — until you realize that you left your books at home!

This was the scenario all too many times for students. So maybe it wasn't the books. Instead it could've been their homework, parents' notes for admission to class, money for lunch or nagging friends. Nothing can compare to the awful feeling that this realization brings.

In addition, through the course of the school day, students constantly explained their teachers what had happened. Some were understanding and others wouldn't believe the story, no matter how truthful it was. This resulted in zeros for some and detention for others.

It wasn't enough that the time spent completing an assignment was wasted. Students didn't get credit for their finished work. "When honestly leave a finished assignment at home, I can usually make up a good excuse to get full credit. But if it's Defazio's class, forget it!" says Erika Schnell.
Student author at Cascade

Ty Wilson

Many high school students enjoy writing, but how many write full length books? Ty started his book, entitled Reality, in October of 1988.

His non-fiction book is philosophical in nature. "Man needs to eliminate science and religion as separate units. They need to become one unit in order to gain greater knowledge of our existence." Ty wants his book to open the eyes of a morally just society so that they can eradicate the differences between creationism and evolutionism. It has taken him years of research to write this very controversial book. He expects to be finished with it in December of 1989.

FIRST CLASS TEAM

Brandon is ready to kick-off a great game! He was the quarterback and kick-off specialist for the Kodiaks this season consistently kicking the ball deep and throwing very well.

1988 FOOTBALL

The season began with a lot of hopes and dreams, but along the way they were dashed. All of the players worked hard and strived to do their very best. However, injuries to key players and mistakes on and off the field led to the final ending.

The team never gave up. The seniors will be missed, but there is a good nucleus of players returning to give us reason to be optimistic about 1989.

The C-Squad had a very successful season. They beat Eastmont at our home field and promise to add a successful future to our football program.

The Junior Varsity went 0-6, yet improved in every aspect of the game of football. All players performed both on offense and defense gaining important experience for the future. Hard work and commitment will determine how successful these athletes are in the future.

After a late start this year, Niki Sines worked into the new coach's system quickly. Niki's height proved to be a great asset for the Kodiaks. The ball popped over for a big point.

This year the Kodiak volleyball team proved that they were capable of competing with any team in the league. The record of wins and losses doesn't show how close and hard-fought each game was. We had the physical ability, but mentally let down. Although new coach Mary Biehn did her part by teaching and working us, we didn't quite put it together. We did improve with every match, which was encouraging.

Next year will be a good one with Mrs. Biehn and four starters returning. They will be out to revenge a few losses.

The 1988-89 wrestling team will be a tough act to follow. The season was full of surprises and also upsets, but all in all it turned out very well. Cascade went to districts with a good crew and five went on to State.

The State tournament was held at the Tacoma Dome, where Tim Dodge placed third, Daryl Wilks took fifth, Gary Waunch also took fifth and Bryan Dodge earned a sixth place finish. The team as a whole ranked fifth out of forty-seven other teams. This year’s team really was the GOOD, the BAD, and the UGLY.

1. Josh Arnold controls his opponent while working around the back. 2. Taking down his man, Tim Dodge tries to work a move. 3. Galo Martinez eyes his wrestler looking for a takedown. 4. Coming from behind, John Miklosh scores a reversal for two points.
The 1988-89 team went through a "re-building" season. Twenty-eight energetic females represented Cascade. Our record at 6-14 didn’t appear respectable; however a lot of improvements were made all the way to our last District game. I value the experience gained working with all the players. Next year’s outlook is very optimistic and I’m looking forward to coaching the team next year.

The 1988-89 season turned out to be the best ever for a Cascade Boys’ Varsity Basketball team since the school was formed in 1983-84. The 1988-89 version of the Kodiaks earned its first State tournament berth for a boys’ team in Cascade High School’s short six year history. Not only will the 1988-89 season be a memorable one for the many fans who followed the team’s progress throughout the course of the long 27 game season, but it will obviously be a memorable one for those who worked hard to make the hope of a good season a complete reality.

When the 1988-89 basketball season first began, the expectations within the inner circle of the entire boys’ basketball program was somewhat higher than they had been in the past. As the season began there was the hope of an anticipated success, but the degree of that success was still uncertain. Dedication, determination, and an unrelenting respect for the work ethic and the team concept proved to be the ingredients that pushed this team beyond the brink of mediocrity. The 1988-89 group was an extremely coachable group and one that accepted the individual roles that were assigned. The highest quality of any good basketball player exists in the ability to accept a given role and play excellent in it. This team played fairly close to excellent within its limitations.

At season’s close we must say goodbye to two senior players who have matured in our basketball program for four years; Mark Heins and Kevin Rieke. Mark was an extremely hard worker who always competed hard regardless of the situation. Kevin set all school scoring records and was also an All-State selection for the season. Kevin will not be replaced and his accomplishments will never be forgotten. Kevin’s example was of the highest honor.

A SLUGGISH SEASON

Spring is a time of new beginnings. It’s a time when motivation and enthusiasm soar; a time of green grass and baby birds. However, this spring the weather was very cold and the fields were covered with snow for our first eight practices. The old familiar smell of fresh cut grass and cool mountain air was stifled by the scent of varnished wood floors and new wrestling mats which crowded our practice space.

When the snow was gone our teams went excitedly to the fields and normal practices began. The fields were unusually green and fragrant, the teams appeared very promising, and we had kept three stong players from last year’s varsity team. Everything appeared promising. But, losses of key players due to injury and other preventable circumstances crimped our spirits and dampered our would-be winning streak.

Though many who didn’t know our team would say we had a very unsuccessful season, I would have to disagree with them. Although losses were greater than wins, this year helped to form many memories of a group of girls who came together and became close friends and we wouldn’t change that for all the winning seasons in the world! This year’s baseball team found out the importance of not only physical preparation but also mental preparation. In a game with so many highs and lows, it’s a difficult to maintain confidence.

Confidence isn’t something spoken, but something shown. We will miss this year’s seniors as they gave much to the program. For the underclassmen, it will be a huge challenge to seek success next year. The potential is there.

Although the track team was small in number, they were big when the point totals came out. With only five members, the girls as well as the guys always scored well in the team portion of the meet. The team was young; there was only one senior trackster and six juniors. The remainder of the team members were underclassmen who will be back in the years to come, bringing experience with them. The team sent three members to the state meet: John Fishburne in the pole vault, Misty Arndt in the shot put and discus, and undefeated record setter Kirston Obergh in the 300 hurdles, the 100 hurdles and the high jump. Congratulations!

Hurdler Kirsten Oberg is showing her perfect technique on the way to setting one of her many records. 4. Sophomore Misty Arndt shows deep concentration with the shot put.

Opposite page: Gabe Raley and Kevin Knoll were two of the distance runners who ran well for the Kodiaks.
The 1989 year turned out to be one of expectation and joy. The boys’ team went 16 — 3 during the year, won the Caribou League championship, won the district championship, and finished eighth in the State tournament.

The girls’ team went 9 — 1 during the year, won the Caribou League championship, and also won the district championship. They then went on to win the first ever State championship for girls’ golf.

I really appreciated the efforts put forth by the team this year but a special thanks goes to the State participants: Kevin Rieke, Jeff Janssen, Jackie Houston, Staci Houston, Erica Taylor and Mandi Cook. Coach Don Douglass
The team had a great year with 24 members. The girls placed 3rd in the Caribou Trail League. Stephanie Morton went on to place 5th at the State tournament. To cap off the season, Coach Furman was named "Coach of the year."

1. Bettina had a good season and played well in Districts. Here she anticipates her next shot. 2. Freshman player Jori Delvo, helps the team with her aggressive play. 3. Gary returns a short shot at the net for the point.
Top left: Kevin Rieke spoke about "The man on the mountain" as an analogy to what lies ahead. "It's your choice in life to do as you will." Top right: Patiently waiting, Natalie Barnes and Karen Wagner prepare for "Pomp and Circumstance". Left: "Friends" was the theme expressed by Carrie Lane to her class and the audience. "Up to this point, there have been so many different types of friends." Above: Janae Taylor receives her diploma with the standard graduation expression.

Keep In Touch . . .

As we bring another year to an end, we find it hard not to stop and think back to what it’s brought us. For some, it may have been one of the best years of their life, but to others it may have been just another school year. We hope we’ve captured some of those memories that are special to you or maybe even brought back ones you’ve forgotten.

Some of the significant news events of 1988-89 were the election of George Bush as President, the Armenian earthquake, the Alar scare, the Oliver North trials, and the disaster of Pan Am flight 103. The drug war is still raging strong, while schools and other organizations continue in their efforts to end this epidemic.

In the sports world, the Washington Centennial Games were a major event across the state. Cascade High School was the site of the gymnastics competition. Some of Cascade’s students participated in various athletic events. This year produced many firsts for Cascade. The boys’ basketball team was the first boys team to play in the State tournament. We sent five wrestlers to the State tournament as well. The biggest first for the year was a State team championship. The girls’ golf team placed 1st in the State match, sending four girls as the team. Sophomore Misty Arndt was the State discus champ for track.

On the national level, the L.A. Dodgers won the World Series and the San Francisco 49’ers were Super Bowl XXIII champions.

At the movie theater we saw such hits as “Bill and Ted’s Excellent Adventure”, “Major League”, “Cocktail”, and “Rainman”. Some of the popular T.V. shows were “Family Ties”, “The Cosby Show”, “The Wonder Years”, and “Roseanne”.

In the clothing fashions, the girls could be found wearing mini skirts, “Keds” sneakers, and shorter jeans and pants. The guys wore Levis in many different colors and Lettermen’s jackets. The neon colors were also popular with both the girls and the guys.

This year at Cascade has been a great one and hopefully there will be many more successful years to come. Though miles may separate you and the friends you have made this year and previous years, we hope that this yearbook will be a reminder to you to always “Keep In Touch.”
